

Sales Executive Search

Executive positions require a different approach in the application process. You are looking for a female professional with a lot of experience but also with a certain skill set. For this particular demand we offer a specified service that gives you access to a select group of applicants: Sales Executive Search. We'll only approach your preferred applicants and we'll only introduce you to applicants that meet your expectations and requirements.

Why choose our Sales Executive Search?

We approach candidates for senior management positions in a different way than other professionals. The requirements for these positions are different and so is the required experience and skill level. Our Sales Executive Service gives you access to a select group of applicants.

Other reasons to choose Sales Executive Search:

Support in setting up the job description

A well-established job description can make an immense difference in finding the right applicant. We'll help you establish the requirements for the position and set up the ideal candidate's profile. We'll introduce you to a select number of compatible sales executives.

Discretion and privacy

We handle your organization's details very discretely. Women in sales will mediate the contact between the executive and your organization. Protecting your privacy is extremely important to us.

Pre-selection

We make a pre-selection of applicants based on your requirements and wishes.

These applicants are selected based on personal interviews, the job description and assessments.

High-end service

We have a large network of educated professionals, Women in Sales is your partner in finding female sales executives. Through a personal interview we first set the requirements that the applicant must meet. The next step is to apply these requirements while looking for suitable applicants.

Advantages of Sales Executive Search

Women in Sales is your partner when it comes finding executive sales professionals. We only match you with the most competent applicants. Other advantages of Sales Executive Search are:

Experience and knowledge

Over the years we've gained a lot of experience and knowledge in the world of sales. This makes us understanding towards you as our client, and also towards the applicant.

Exclusive network

Women in Sales has carefully built a large and exclusive network of female sales executives over the years.

We know our professionals

In our Sales Executive Search process, executive applicants have a discrete and professional dialogue with our Executive Consultants. We know exactly who we are dealing with and who we are introducing you to. We don't just base our knowledge off a resume but on the actual person.

The right applicant for the right organization

Executive search is not about quickly filling a job opening. Women in Sales wants to make sure the right person is placed in the right organization for the right position. A genuine match is very important to us.

Personal attention

You can be assured that both you and the applicant will get the attention you deserve. Short and clear communication lines are our aspiration. We work quickly, professionally and with individual attention.

Want to know more?

Leave your Executive Sales Search to Women in Sales to find the best sales executive. Please do not hesitate to contact us for more information or a quotation.

info@womeninsales.nl